

Make a “firm stand” against erectile dysfunction now! A man is someone who is not willing to say that he is weak or that he is not capable of doing something. After all, it has been etched in the minds of people that a man must be a producer. This is also true when it comes to having children. If a man is unable to have a child by impregnating a woman, he is automatically labeled as a weak person, or is even believed by some as not worthy to become a man. This leads them to blame somebody else for their infertility “ specifically, attributing that it is their wife or the woman who is impotent, not them. But even if a man is able to save face in front of other people, he will surely be ridden with guilt as well as feel helpless that it is him “ not his wife “ who is the reason for the couple not having a child. As long as a man is unable to admit his impotence, he will never be able to get to the bottom of the situation and solve the problem. If you are one of the unfortunate individuals who experience the condition called “erectile dysfunction”, then it’s time to man up and admit that you have a problem!
